"The dance had not yet begun when my storm troopers—for so they were called from this day on—attacked. Like wolves they flung themselves in packs of eight or 10 again and again on their enemies, and little by little actually began to thrash them out of the hall. After only five minutes I hardly saw a one of them who was not covered with blood. How many of them I only came really to know on that day . . . my present private secretary Hess and many others, who, even though gravely injured themselves, attacked again and again as long as their legs would hold them."

Minneapolis Comrades Demand Freedom for Rudolf Hess

Members of the Richard Biederman Unit in Minneapolis concentrated their activities during December on focusing public attention on the plight of Rudolf Hess.

On 10 December, the unit held a "Free Rudolf Hess!" demonstration at the College of St. Catherine in St. Paul, Minn. The National Socialists picketed a meeting there kicking off the start of a "Human Rights Week" being sponsored by local leftists. The unit members carried signs reading "Free Rudolf Hess" and "Human Rights for Rudolf Hess." There were no incidents.

On 12 December, two unit comrades succeeded in interrogating one David Weisbrodt, a Jewish representitive of Amnesty International. Amnesty International is an organization which is supposedly interested in securing "human rights" for political prisoners around the world, regardless of their beliefs. In reality, AI has shown precious little interest in helping out anyone unless they are Jewish, Black or Communist (or any combination of the three).

The Minneapolis comrades verbally cornered Weisbrodt on a call-in talk show on KUOM radio. When asked by Unit Leader Steve Martinson what Amnesty International was doing to secure the release of Rudolf Hess and Bob Miles, Weisbrodt said that he "wasn't familiar with the case," even after the details of both cases had been fully explained to him over the air by Comrade Martinson. NSWO member Shirley Betland then called in and spoke about the harassment of Povl Riis-Knudsen and Hans Christian Pedersen of the Danish National Socialist Union. Once again, Weisbrodt copped out, saying he wasn't "familiar with the case."

The unit's activities on behalf of Rudolf Hess climaxed in December on the 17th, when unit members disrupted a speech by Congressman Donald Fraser at another "human rights" meeting convened by local leftists.

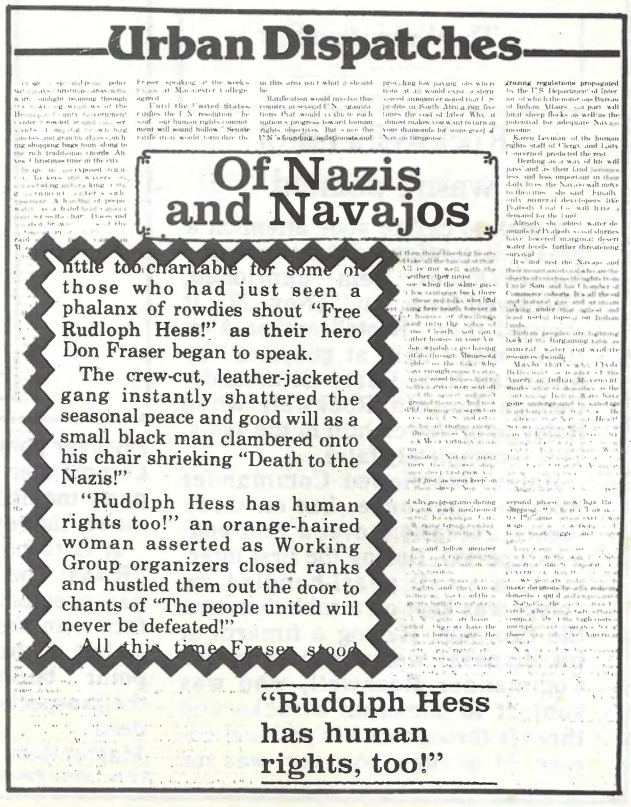
For one solid week before the meeting, advertisements had been run showing dead Blacks in Rhodesia and telling tales of woe from South Korea, Chile, South Africa, etc. As might have been expected, there were no stories concerning the violations of human rights by Communist countries or Israel.

Before the meeting started, nine National Socialists in street clothes entered the hall. They waited patiently as hippie folk singers left over from the 1960s and monkey-like dancers from Malaysia performed. Finally Frazer, a liberal Democrat and staunch supporter of Israel began to address the audience.

As Fraser began to speak, tha National Socialists left their seats and formed a line. A long streamer was unfurled reading "Free Hess." Unit Leader Martinson shouted "Human rights for Rudolf Hess!" and then joined the other comrades in chanting "Free Rudolf Hess!" six times in unison.

Fraser's jaw dropped open, and numerous Reds and Jews in the audience began screaming "Death to the Nazis," etc. Some shoving and pushing with the scruffier elements of the crowd took place, but there were no injuries or arrests. Satisfied that they had made their point, the National Socialists left undisturbed.

The Party received some minor news coverage as a result of this event.



Urban Dispatches

Of Nazis and Navajos

little too charitable for some of those who had just seen a phalanx of rowdies shout "Free Rudloph Hess!" as their hero Don Fraser began to speak.

The crew-cut, leather-jacketed gang instantly shattered the seasonal peace and good will as a small black man clambered onto his chair shrieking "Death to the Nazis!"

"Rudolph Hess has human rights too!" an orange-haired woman asserted as Working Group organizers closed ranks and hustled them out the door to chants of "The people united will never be defeated!"

All this time Fraser stood

"Rudolph Hess has human rights, too!"

Roots II to Smear Commander Rockwell

It was widely reported in the mass media during December that Roots: The Next Generations will include a segment in which Roots author Alex Haley (portrayed by actor James Earl Jones) interviews Commander Lincoln Rockwell (Marlon Brando). The original Roots, of course, was a thinly disguised work of anti-White propaganda, and it appears that Roots II will be the same.

The actual interview between Rockwell and Haley took place on three different occasions over a year and a half period. One of these segments was by telephone. Haley proved to be an easygoing, not-too-intelligent interviewer. The interviews Commander Rockwell gave Haley were later "creatively shaped" by Playboy editor Murray Fisher, and in their final form bore little relation to what actually transpired.

The Roots II portrayal of Lincoln Rockwell likewise seems to have been "creatively shaped" by a Jewish producer. One of the more glaring inaccuracies includes Commander Rockwell's attire: In Roots, Commander Rockwell wears a black SS uniform. In real life, he wore a white shirt and tie during the interview.

Jewish producer David Wolper has been quoted as saying that Lincoln Rockwell was "so scared that he held Haley at gunpoint throughout the interview." In reality, nothing of the sort ever happened.

Reproduced here is an article from the Montreal, Canada, Gazette which is typical of the smear job the mass media is perpetrating against the memory of Commander Rockwell. Also reproduced is WHITE POWER editor Martin Kerr's reply to a similar article in the Washington Star.

The Roots segment in which Lincoln Rockwell will be portrayed is scheduled to be aired on 25 February. The scene is to last approximately 10 minutes.

Marlon Brando and James Earl Jones meet in 'Roots' sequel.

Brando requested role as villain in 'Roots' II

NEW YORK — It's official. Marlon Brando, one of the top-salaried actors in Hollywood, has agreed to appear in his first TV dramatic role in the final episode of Roots: The Next Generations, to be televised by ABC as a 14-hour mini-series in February.

Brando will play George Lincoln Rockwell, the leader of the American Nazi Party during the 1960s. The segment was shot last week, winding up production on the $17 million series, which will take up where the original Roots left off. It will chronicle nearly 100 years of American history leading up to the emergence of Roots author Alex Haley (played by James Earl Jones) and the writing of his best-selling book.

"It was Brando himself who initiated the idea to appear in the drama," said David Wolper, executive producer of the series.

"Brando contacted Haley last summer and told him how much he enjoyed Roots 1 and that he wanted to appear in the new series. He told him that it didn't have to be a big part, but he insisted that it be a villainous role."

Wolper said that Brando is donating his salary, which is nowhere "near where he's actually worth," to charity. The segment, he said, will last about 10 minutes on screen. "It's a powerful scene," Wolper said. "They are face-to-face — a back and a white. Rockwell was being interviewed by Haley for a Playboy magazine article and was so scared that he held Haley at gunpoint throughout the interview."

Rockwell's pistol wasn't pointed

I wish to call to your attention a gross distortion of fact in your Names/Faces item captioned, "Rockwell for a Day" (Nov. 29). It charged that "Roots" author Alex Haley was "held at gunpoint" by American Nazi Party Commander George Lincoln Rockwell when Haley interviewed him in the 1960s. This is completely false.

Haley interviewed Commander Rockwell not once, but on three separate occasions over a year-and-a-half period. During the first interview, a small pearl-handled revolver was kept on a table between the two men. Having a firearm at his disposal was a necessity for Commander Rockwell, who was subject to numerous attacks and threats throughout his political career. At no time, however, was the revolver pointed at Haley, either by Commander Rockwell or any other party member. In subsequent interviews, the revolver was not present.

It is to be hoped that ABC-TV's "Roots: The Next Generations" will pay greater attention to historical fact than the original "Roots" did — but if the "being-held-at-gunpoint" business is any indication, the prospects for this seem bleak indeed.

National Headquarters Holds Annual Rudolf Hess Vigil

National Headquarters held its annual Rudolf Hess vigil on 23 and 24 December. NHQ staff members were joined by members of the Baltimore Unit and other comrades from several East Coast states for the event.

A giant sign was set up across from the White House, with a picture of Hess and the queation "Was PEACE a crime?" Leaflets explaining Hess' case were passed out to interested passersby.

National Headquarters' annual Yule feast was held on the evening of 23 December, in conjunction with the vigil. A delicious turkey dinner was prepared by a local woman comrade, after which Commander Koehl conducted a brief but moving ceremony in honor of the 12 individuals who have been declared Heroes of the Movement.

National Headquarters personnel along with other comrades from the East Coast join the Commander (above) for the annual Rudolf Hess vigil across from the White House in Washington. Above right, two women comrades leafleting the vigil site.

Notice to Southern Party Comrades!

A program of Party activities for Southern states for this coming summer is presently being prepared by North Carolina Party Organizer John Norman. Any Party comrade in North Carolina or any other Southern state who wishes to help out with these activities should contact Comrade Norman at the following address:

ACTIVITIES IN BRIEF

● Three paper sales were held by the Richard Biederman Unit in Minneapolis during December. The most successful of these was on 2 December. Approximately 50 papers were sold, and over $18.00 in donations was collected.

● Minneapolis comrades also distributed the most copies of WHITE POWER during the month. Some 640 newspapers were distributed door-to-door, according to Unit Leader Steve Martinson.

● A Party comrade who works in Washington, D.C., reports distributing 187 copies of WHITE POWER and about twice as many leaflets on the District of Columbia subway system over the holiday season.

● Other areas reporting organized literature distributions include Arlington, Chicago, Maine, Milwaukee and Orange County (Calif.).

● Chicago Unit II Organizer Steve Lynch reports that unit conducted two paper sales during December. The Cleveland Unit also held one uniformed paper sale during the month, according to the unit secretary.

● In addition to Comrade Kerr's letter concerning Commander Rockwell, two other comrades had letters to the editor printed during the month. Comrade James Maloney's letter to the Shenandoah Herald (Penn.) discussed the plight of Rudolf Hess, while Official Supporter Red Warthan's letter to the Oroville Mercury (Calif.) demanded the death sentence for homosexual mass murderers. Both letters are reproduced here.

SAYS JUSTICE IS A JOKE

Our present day American Justice is a joke. I refer to the article on Elmer Wayne Henley who was "sentenced" to serve 594 years for killing with sexual torture 27 youths with his homosexual perverted brain.

American law is based on the principle of the letter of the law and not the spirit of the law. If this happened in America after the American Nazis take over Mr. Henley would have been shot within a short time by a firing squad.

However, living under an American (?) system, that protects criminals and convicts I suspect he will hire a ghost writer, copywright a best-seller and make a million dollars.

Keep Those Donations Coming!

As was previously announced, the 1978 Fall Building Campaign was an unqualified success. We raised exactly the amount of money needed to make the downpayment on the 88-acre congress site in the Midwest by the deadline. Some of the money raised, however, was in the form of short-term loans from loyal Party members and supporters. These loans must now be repaid over the coming months.

Those Comrades who wish to contribute to the congress site in the Midwest are encouraged to do so. Such donations should be sent directly to Arlington. As with all monies sent in, contributions to the congress site should be clearly labeled so that NHQ knows what they are to be used for.

Yuletide Thanks

National Headquarters wishes to thank all those who sent yuletide greetings to us over the holiday season. We especially wish to thank those comrades who included a small gift with their card—it was greatly appreciated!

TO THE EDITOR:

Jack Anderson's article on human rights violations is interesting in that it wasn't the Soviet Union or other Communist regimes that condemned us for incarcerating black terrorists (Wilmington Ten), but so-called American and religious organizations.

They ignorantly claim that we are no better than Russia and they intend to cite America as a human rights violator at the United Nations. It appears that when blacks or other minorities commit crimes (firebombing a courthouse) it is equated with political oppression and bigotry rather than a mindless, criminal act of blatant terrorism. It seems apparent that "certain groups" can trample over any law they damn well please.

We're always jabbering over human rights, yet the most outstanding example of a human rights violation lies at the gates of Spandau Fortress in Berlin. Here a persecuted old man is entering his fourth decade as a political hostage of the Soviets, who refuse to release him.

His name is Rudolph Hess, a man who isn't even allowed to touch his wife and children, who has been in solitary confinement since 1966. What are the hideous crimes he perpetrated? Was it that he was an associate of Hitler?

No. In 1941 he flew to England in a vain attempt to make peace. Is peace a crime that one lone man risked his life to obtain and failed? He was in the London Tower when the Nazis allegedly executed their "Final Solution" program against the Jews. He never wanted a world conflagration, yet at Nuremberg he was denounced as a criminal.

I think before we even glance upon human rights and politcal prisoners we should take a hard llok at the martyrdom of Rudloph Hess, finally come to our senses and demand the release of this Prisoner of Peace. It's time we looked at the biggest violation of Human Rights.
